Skin Care During Treatment

Resource Brochure

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Managing your skin during colorectal cancer treatment is important, as some treatments can cause skin reactions. Taking care of your skin can help relieve discomfort and minimize skin damage. The Skink Care During Treatment brochure highlights the importance of regular communication between patients and their healthcare providers regarding any skin reactions experienced during cancer treatment. Skin reactions can vary depending on the type of treatment received and the individual patient, and proper management of these reactions may involve changes in skincare routines or adjustment of treatment.

Through the guidance provided in this brochure, patients can better understand how to prevent and manage skin reactions, ultimately leading to improved comfort and quality of life throughout their cancer treatment. Additionally, the brochure serves as a valuable resource for caregivers and loved ones, who can use this information to support patients in maintaining healthy skin throughout their cancer journey.

TOPICS

- * EGFR-i Rash
- * Hand-Foot Syndrome
- * Hand-Foot Skin Reaction
- * Oral Care
- * Stoma Skin Care
- * Sun Protection

Taking care of skin during treatment for colorectal cancer is crucial, adhering to guidelines can aid in the management of typical skin reactions, leading to a more comfortable experience throughout treatment. If you have any inquiries or concerns about your skin reactions, communicate with your healthcare team.

